The Sir Guy Carleton Branch and Loyalist descendants everywhere are deeply in debt to John Ruch who brought his energy, enthusiasm and dedication to The King's Names project, and oversaw it to its completion over 14 years, from 1984 to 1996. Here are his acknowledgements as written in the Brochure for the sale of the Carleton Loyalist Index CDs in 1996.

“Sir Guy Carleton Branch wishes to express its appreciation to the Public Record Office of the United Kingdom as custodian of the original records, for preserving and keeping them accessible for research, and to Miss Ann Crawford, of its staff, for her encouragement. We also acknowledge our gratitude to the National Archives of Canada, in particular to the late Dr. Robert S. Gordon, former Director of Manuscript Division, for authorizing special facilities: in that the working group was given exceptional use of microfilm readers and the card index cabinet plus long-term storage of the index cards in that cabinet; and to the Circulation Desk staff for their courtesy and extra efforts during the first phase of Data Extraction.

In the second phase, of Data Input, we received additional assistance and access to equipment through David Enns, Director of the Reference Services Division. We were indebted throughout the Project to Patricia Kennedy, Chief of Pre-Confederation Archives (in Manuscript Division) for her encouragement, expertise, time and moral support, and we enjoyed the kind co-operation of the staff in the Genealogical Unit including its Director, Carol White, with Lorraine St. Louis Harrison and Mary Munk. Timothy Dube of the British Records Section was also very helpful. Some essential reference works were supplied on long term loan by Heritage Branch (Montreal) of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada.

We are also grateful for the initial support and encouragement of the late Dr. Robert Allen, formerly with the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs, Prof. Wallace Brown of the University of New Brunswick, Mrs. Kathryn Hilder of the Harriet Irving Library, Dr. W.A.B. Douglas, formerly of the Department of National Defence, the late Dr. Elinor Senior of McGill University, Mr. Victor Southern of the Canadian War Museum, Dr. Sidney F. Wise and David Hutchinson of Carleton University, and Gary Campbell of the Department of Communications.

Funding for the project came in the form of a Bicentennial Grant in 1984 from the Secretary of State, student Summer Employment contributions from the Ministry of Employment and Immigration in 1984 and 1985, a Canadian Studies:

Research Tools Grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and additional assistance from a Canada Employment Job Creation Programme.

Compilation of the index to the British Headquarters Papers was carried on periodically over four years by successive teams of researchers. Jaye Jarvis led the first two teams consisting of Mary Jane Armstrong, Donna Bekkers and Lorraine O'Donnell; followed by Cameron Campbell, Jeffrey Langille and Kevin Solomon. Ivan Mitchell managed the next group which included: Jade Belyea, James Phillips and Michael Way. The last two specialized on the Book of Negroes, and David W. States of Halifax, Nova Scotia, generously contributed an introduction for this document. Mr. Way and Mrs. Belyea began the data input. Branch volunteers who assisted by carding in 1984 were: Ina McGregor, Gwen Norminton, and David Webster. Branch members Lt. Col. Frank Cooper, Norman Crowder, Capt. Ivan Mitchell, the late Dr. Velma Rust, and Lt. Col. William Smy served on the Project Committee at various times; the late Thomas Chadsey and the late Ruth Williams assisted, and the late William Cornell gave invaluable financial advice.

During the interim period when no funding was available the input was carried on by part-time Branch volunteers co-ordinated by Dr. Edward Kipp. They were: George Anderson, Margaret Kipp, Edward Kipp and Russell Peters. In the final stage a Canada Employment Job Creation programme allowed us to employ and to train young people for input of historical research data thus completing the work. These young people were trained by Dr. Kipp in the database structure and the inputting of the data into dBase. These researchers were: Robert Blaine, Brian Carty, James Halls, Kristine Classen, Gary Rourke, and Karen Woods. Some final proofing of data was completed by the volunteers already mentioned. Further assistance in harmonizing the computer programmes was provided by Steven Vandereems and Margaret Kipp.

The final version of this program was produced by Edward Kipp including the installation instructions and the preparation of the first fifty copies of the program on diskettes. CD-ROM copies were prepared and produced by Edward Kipp. George Anderson, Edward Kipp, and Elizabeth Kipp served on the publication committee.
