

“Discover the humanity in the history.”

BOOK ANNOUNCEMENT

Latest Release from Author, Jennifer DeBruin, Explores Captive Experience of Canadian Ancestors

With the October 30, 2015 release of her third fact-based, historical fiction novel, Daughter of Conflict, Author, Jennifer DeBruin, follows up her popular novels, A Walk with Mary (2012) and Shadows in the Tree (2013), with another heart-wrenching story inspired by true events.

Based on a famous attack known as the “1704 Raid on Deerfield,” American colonists were carried off to Canada, including Sarah Allen, who was taken to the shores of the mighty St. Lawrence River.

Daughter of Conflict Synopsis:

Isolated on the frontier of colonial Deerfield, Massachusetts, Sarah yearns to know what lies beyond the distant hills – beyond her strict Puritan life. What she does not know is that her family lies dangerously exposed to those with ambitions to rid the land of the English.

Lurking amidst the majestic beauty, which captivates her imagination, the French and their Native allies, await the opportunity to strike.

With the enemy at hand, Sarah learns what lies beyond, but it is nothing as she imagined or dreamed, for she awakens into a nightmare.

Riveting, complex and heartbreaking, the captive story is one of tragedy and triumph. As the battle for supremacy of the North American colonies raged over generations, people were swept up in its wake. Inspired by her own ancestor’s experience, DeBruin explores the many complexities of life in ancient lands, and the result of the French and English claims to its riches.

Daughter of Conflict (ISBN: 978-0-9947461-2-2) is available in both Book and eBook formats.

About the Author:

With deep ancestral roots in New France/Quebec, Upper Canada/Ontario, and colonial America, Jennifer is interested in exploring the human story within this rich history.

Combining her passion and experience in writing, education, history, and genealogy, Jennifer writes fact-based, historical fiction that engages readers in “discovering the humanity in the history.”

A dynamic and knowledgeable speaker, Jennifer is a sought-after presenter at historical, literary and community events.

www.jenniferdebruin.com

jenndebruin@gmail.com | 613.485.0305 |  /AuthorJenniferDeBruin

